B. INTRODUCTION

Integral to the need and subsequent development of an academic program in any discipline is a demonstrated demand for its graduates. So much so that it is a requirement that needs to be appropriately addressed and adequately met before the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board will approve the program.

Aviation programs meeting the standards of the Aviation Accreditation Board International are expected to produce graduates that demonstrate a knowledge of mathematics, science, and applied science with an ability to analyze and interpret data, function on a diverse team, understand their professional and ethical responsibilities, communicate effectively, use and adapt to modern technology, solve problems and understand contemporary issues in the national and international environment. A successful program will generate graduates capable of working in a variety of jobs and in a variety of positions and environments. Understanding how many businesses offer employment opportunities to an educated and trained workforce is an important component of the North Central Texas Council of Government's (NCTCOG) North Texas Aviation Education Initiative.

Aviation employers across the board in North Central Texas and the State of Texas are identified in this document. The industries and employers identified and reported below are those likely to hire the graduates of aviation programs in the region. These employers hire largely from programs in aviation management, aviation maintenance, aviation electronics, aviation studies, flight education, and safety science programs. This includes graduates of existing two-year programs and any new four-year programs that may be developed. Employment in these areas includes skilled technical positions and management positions. This comprehensive library focuses on companies that employ people in a variety of positions including those that are foremost when thinking about aviation. These include:

- Pilots;
- Airline operations;
- Airport operations;
- Aircraft maintenance;
- Aviation manufacturing;
- Law enforcement;
- Aviation-related local, state and federal government; and
- Scientific and technical positions.

The aforementioned list is a small subset of the job titles and careers that are available in aviation today. What many may not consider when contemplating careers in the aviation industry is that aviation-related companies hire in positions that are present in many industries. These include finance, human resources, accounting, marketing, computer science, information technology, and numerous others. For employers, having employees with aviation-specific knowledge in these functions offers their company advantages. This includes industry familiarity and job-related training and skills that the company does not have to provide. Not only does this provide additional opportunities for graduates of aviation programs but it reinforces the importance of well-rounded curriculums with access to a variety of business and technology classes at the senior level.

C. KEY CLASSIFICATIONS

As noted in the employment data provided in Aviation Employment Data, in the North American Industry Classification System (NAICS), dated July 2009, there are four primary classifications for aviation-related employment/employers that are included in this analysis. These are:

- Aerospace Product and Parts Manufacturing (3364);
- Scheduled Air Transportation (4811);
- Nonscheduled Air Transportation (4812); and
- Support Activities for Air Transportation (4881).

For each of these classifications, this analysis includes a description of the industry classification, a list of the top ten occupations associated with that classification (according to national data), labor market information for both Texas and North Central Texas (16 counties), and labor supply data for both Texas and North Central Texas. The labor market and supply data is the most current available from the Texas Workforce Commission (TWC). It is intended to supplement the employment data referenced above and show the aviation-related workforce demand/need in the region. It provides future growth estimates for each job title and specifies how many are expected to be new growth and how many are expected to be replacements. Each classification has five exhibits.

The NAICS codes were established by the federal government for the purpose of standardizing employment data. The descriptions below are taken from the official definitions provided in that regard.

Definitions of some data fields used in the following exhibits are included as Appendix A of this report to provide additional clarification. These definitions are those provided by the TWC.

NAICS 3364: AEROSPACE PRODUCT AND PARTS MANUFACTURING

Description: This industry comprises establishments primarily engaged in one or more of the following: (1) manufacturing complete aircraft, missiles, or space vehicles; (2) manufacturing aerospace engines, propulsion units, auxiliary equipment or parts; (3) developing and making prototypes of aerospace products; (4) aircraft conversion (i.e., major modifications to systems); and (5) complete aircraft or propulsion systems overhaul and rebuilding (i.e., periodic restoration of aircraft to original design specifications).

Data Exhibits

Exhibit 1 below shows the top 10 occupations by job title associated with aerospace products and parts manufacturing industry. Exhibits 2 and 3 show the labor market information for the Aerospace Product and Parts Manufacturing classification including the percentage of each job by title, the 2004 and expected 2014 employment levels, growth data and wage information. These are for the state and region, respectively. Exhibits 4 and 5 provide a labor supply estimate for Texas and the region, respectively. This includes 2006 employment data by job title, the number of applicants for each job title, recent graduates by job title and the total labor supply estimate. The recent graduates are those that are recent graduates of education and training programs and that meet the requirements of the job. These are linked using the job title to instructional program crosswalk (SOC-to-CIP) that ties educational programs to employment.

Data Exhibits

Exhibit 16 below shows the top 10 occupations by job title associated with aerospace products and parts manufacturing industry. Exhibits 17 and 18 show the labor market information for the Aerospace Product and Parts Manufacturing classification including the percentage of each job by title, the 2006 and expected 2016 employment levels, growth data and wage information. These are for the state and region, respectively. Exhibits 19 and 20 provide a labor supply estimate for Texas and the region, respectively. This includes 2006 employment data by job title, the number of applicants for each job title, recent graduates by job title and the total labor supply estimate. The recent graduates are those that are recent graduates of education and training programs and that meet the requirements of the job. These are linked using the job title to instructional program crosswalk (SOC-to-CIP) that ties educational programs to employment.

DEFINITIONS

SOC Code

This column represents the Standard Occupational Classification (SOC) code for each position commonly found in the staffing pattern of this industry type based on the goods or services produced. The SOC classifies workers at four levels of aggregation: 1) major group; 2) minor group; 3) broad occupation; and 4) detailed occupation. The occupations in this product are all identified at this most detailed level (their SOC code follows the pattern '99-9999'.)

Current Employment (2006)

The number of persons in the indicated region (or statewide) employed in this occupation in 2006. Since industry specialization varies, employment in this occupation may be concentrated within this industry or may be spread among several, many, or even all industries.

The employment figures given here represent employment across all industries. Workers currently employed in identical occupations in the region represent a viable talent pool for firms seeking to locate, expand or retool operations in the same region.

Percent Industry Employment

This value indicates the relative presence of an occupation within a typical establishment in this industry. A value of 25%, for example, would indicate that, on average, one in every four employees in a typical establishment of this type would be employed in that occupation.

SOC Title

This column represents the SOC Title for each position commonly found in the staffing pattern of this industry type based on the goods or services produced. The SOC classifies workers at four levels of aggregation: 1) major group; 2) minor group; 3) broad occupation; and 4) detailed occupation. The occupations in this product are all identified at this most detailed level.

TWC Applicant Transactions

Persons in the region who have applied for Unemployment Insurance (UI) and/or other services through the Texas Workforce Commission. The transaction counts are based on the applicant's occupation at last employment and cover approximately the previous 24 months. (The current counts cover the period January 2005 through September 2007.)

Click on the values in this column for any occupation to view applications currently on file with the WorkInTexas system for this occupation group within the selected region. Results are returned for the broader group in which this occupation resides (e.g., clicking on SOC 15-2091 will return results for all SOC codes starting with 15-2.)

Related Graduations

Recent Graduates of education and training programs that impart the KSAs required for employment in the given occupation. The Recent Graduates figures represent school year 2004/2005 graduates from related programs, based on a SOC-to-CIP crosswalk.

Related Employment

The Related Employment counts represent a very rough estimate of the number of attractable persons in the region currently working in occupations similar to the given occupation. Workers employed in similar occupations are considered attractable if their current wage is less than or essentially equal to (within 5% of) the target occupation's mean wage.

These figures are obtained by using a version of an O*NET-based Knowledge, Skills and Abilities matching routine. Related occupations are identified through a process of proximity matching the O*NET knowledge, skills and abilities variables for each occupation and selecting those occupations that exhibit the best total sets of close or exact matches.

Matches typically indicate a similar level of skill or knowledge in a certain area or general level of physical requirements and are not intended to imply an exact training or skill match.

OTHER RELEVANT NAICS CODES

As a point of information and reference, there may be other aviation-related jobs that are not found in the four primary classifications discussed above. While these opportunities may be somewhat limited compared to the primary four, they are mentioned here for informational purposes.

The TWC database (of Interactive Industry-Occupation Matrix) was used to identify additional classifications related to air transportation, aerospace, and aviation. The following NAICS codes were returned.

Air Transportation

4889 – Other Support Activities for Transportation

This industry comprises establishments primarily engaged in providing support activities to transportation (except for AIR TRANSPORTATION; rail transportation; water transportation; road transportation; and freight transportation arrangement).

Illustrative Examples: Arrangement of vanpools or carpools; Independent pipeline terminal facilities; Stockyards (i.e., not for fattening or selling livestock)

Aerospace

3345 – Navigational, Measuring, Electromedical, and Control Instruments Manufacturing

This industry comprises establishments primarily engaged in manufacturing navigational, measuring, electromedical, and control instruments. Examples of products made by these establishments are aeronautical instruments, appliance regulators and controls (except switches), laboratory analytical instruments, navigation and guidance systems, and physical properties testing equipment.

3359 – Other Electrical Equipment and Component Manufacturing

This industry group comprises establishments manufacturing electrical equipment and components (except electric lighting equipment, household-type appliances, transformers, switchgear, relays, motors, and generators).

3369 – Other Transportation Equipment Manufacturing

This industry group comprises establishments primarily engaged in manufacturing transportation equipment (except motor vehicles and parts, AEROSPACE products and parts, railroad rolling stock, ship building, and boat manufacturing).

Aviation

3241 – Petroleum and Coal Products Manufacturing

The Petroleum and Coal Products Manufacturing subsector is based on the transformation of crude petroleum and coal into usable products. The dominant process is petroleum refining that involves the separation of crude petroleum into component products through such techniques as cracking and distillation.

In addition, this subsector includes establishments that primarily further process refined petroleum and coal products and produce products, such as asphalt coatings and petroleum lubricating oils. However, establishments that manufacture petrochemicals from refined petroleum are classified in Industry 32511, Petrochemical Manufacturing.

6115 – Technical and Trade Schools

Includes establishments classified under:

61151 – Technical and Trade Schools]: This industry comprises establishments primarily engaged in offering vocational and technical training in a variety of technical subjects and trades. The training often leads to job-specific certification.

7139 – Other Amusement and Recreation Industries

This industry comprises (1) establishments primarily engaged in operating golf courses (except miniature) and (2) establishments primarily engaged in operating golf courses, along with dining facilities and other recreational facilities that are known as country clubs. These establishments often provide food and beverage services, equipment rental services, and golf instruction services.

8133 – Social Advocacy Organizations

This industry comprises establishments primarily engaged in promoting a particular cause or working for the realization of a specific social or political goal to benefit a broad or specific constituency. These organizations may solicit contributions and offer memberships to support these goals.

Illustrative Examples: Conservation advocacy organizations; Community action advocacy organizations; Environmental advocacy organizations; Firearms advocacy organizations; Human rights advocacy organizations; Wildlife preservation organizations

In addition to these, there are those NAICS codes that represent local (9399), state (9299), and federal (9199) governments. These entities often employ airport manager, planners, and other aviation-related professional and technical staff including air traffic controllers.

STATEWIDE IMPACTS/BENEFITS

Cumulatively speaking, airports and their related aviation activity is big business in Texas. The 300 airports in the Texas Airport System and the businesses that support them by providing aviation-related services, provide a significant economic boost to the state. The most recent economic impact analysis performed for the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT), Aviation Division, shown in Exhibit 1, illustrates just how large this activity is. These impacts are reflective of the jobs located on the airport and the impact felt by the users of and visitors to the airports. These metrics do not account for the myriad benefits the airport may provide to enhance the quality of life, health, safety of Texas residents. Examples of these include agriculture production, medical air transportation, business/economic development, fire protection and law enforcement, and access to remote parts of the state.

AVIATION EMPLOYER LISTING

The data utilized for the aviation employer listing is sourced to the TWC which has a licensing agreement with a private vendor to provide employer information for the state. Use of the data for this analysis is an acceptable practice under the licensing agreement. This allows for extensive analysis to identify the vast employment needs in the state and region, thus justifying additional and coordinated workforce development initiatives to enhance the state and region's supply of skilled and qualified employees.

Publishing this information in any form requires additional consultation with the TWC. A request to do so should come from NCTCOG itself with an explanation of the purpose and the format of the data. The intent is to prevent the reselling of the information or the development of mailing list type of information that is beyond the scope of the TWC's licensing agreement.

With that said, this source of aviation employers is the most comprehensive and exhaustive list available today. The four primary NAICS codes for aviation-related employers were used to identify those companies with a keen interest in hiring aviation program graduates. Statewide, more than 855 businesses were identified with 306 of them located in North Central Texas. Some of these entries duplicate company names as some businesses have more than one office in the state or region. The information includes the company name, contact information, a description of the business including the NAICS codes, the annual sales, and the number of employees. The sales and employment numbers are reported in ranges and, in some cases, are not available.

The listing is organized first by region and then by state. The regional listing is by NAICS code and then by employer size. The state data is simply listed alphabetically. The employment size range is: N/A, 1,000+, 500-999, 100-499, 50-99, 20-49, 10-19, and 5-9.

Exhibit 2 shows the number of aviation-related employers in the state and region according to employer size. This exhibit provides some insight into the number of aviation resources in North Central Texas. The exhibit is also stratified by NAICS code to provide additional information on the types of businesses.

In an effort to provide the comprehensive list possible and avoid any inadvertent omissions, the aviation-related employers in the NCTCOG major employer database are also provided as supplemental information. Some companies are listed in the NCTCOG data that are not included in the TWC data. This data supplements the aviation listing that follows and it is shown in Exhibit 3.
