

Coordinated Land Use & Transportation Planning Task Force

Transit & Land Use Connections

How does our region best plan and partner to develop land uses that support transit trips in the context of different communities across the region? As North Texas grows toward a possible 12 million people by 2050, it's important to continue providing land uses that offer more mobility options. All cities in North Texas share the need to coordinate land use with transit as regional conversations look to reimagine and expand transit service across the region.
