Feces Can Spread Disease Through Soil
Leaving waste behind can spread disease to humans, other dogs and wildlife. Along with E.coli and salmonella, dog waste has been known to carry Salmonellosis, Parvovirus, and Giardiasis. These types of bacteria and parasites can live in the soil for a long time, if not picked up.
#DYK that dog poo left in soil can spread diseases? Learn why it is important to pick up after your pet at dfwstormwater.com/petwaste.
