5. Approval of the Dallas-Fort Worth Air Quality Improvement Plan - Comprehensive Action Plan (DFW AQIP-CAP). NCTCOG staff will seek the RISE Coalition's approval of the DFW AQIP-CAP. If approved, the plan will be brought to NCTCOG's Executive Board for endorsement.

Savana Nance (NCTCOG) provided an update on the Dallas-Fort Worth Air Quality Improvement Plan (DFW-AQIP) and led a discussion on the measures and targets for all sectors in the plan. A survey was shared with members to collect feedback on the plan before its submittal on December 1st, 2025.

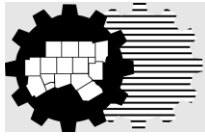

Savana began by presenting the transportation measures. Feedback included providing clarification on heavy-duty vehicle eligibility, defining attractiveness of transit station appearance, and including a definitions page with the measures. Savana then shared information regarding the energy measures. Feedback included inquiring about whether the energy allocation charts take into consideration the impact of data centers on private sector overtaking residential energy usage, changing the implementing agency for LED streetlight upgrades as they are not owned by the city, updating reduction goals for heat pumps and HVAC processes, and prioritizing residential retrofits. Corinne Buckley (NCTCOG) shared information concerning the water and wastewater measures. Feedback included defining what qualifies as aging infrastructure and clarifying what the cap is for the cost of fixing aging infrastructure. Corinne continued with measures on materials management. Feedback included clarification on projections including additional distance travelled by trash collectors once local landfills are at capacity. Corinne rounded out the update and discussion with the measures on agriculture, forestry, and land use, pointing out decreases in emissions in this sector due to increasing urbanization.

Staff discussed upcoming related efforts, including presentation of the draft plan at the November NCTCOG Executive Board meeting, and a public listening session on November 12th. Details on how to get involved with the DFW-AQIP process can be found on the program website.

be offered in place of the awards this fiscal year. Corinne asked the group what topics are of high priority for the workshops and webinars. Lindsay Graf (City of Plano) stated that they would be interested in sustainable procurement first, then energy efficiency. Brandi Kelp (City of Fort Worth) added that green spaces should include trails. Sujata Gautam (City of McKinney) stated that energy efficiency and sustainable procurement were their top two choices. Cory (City of Carrollton) ranked energy efficiency, sustainable procurement, and regional green space in that order of interest. Jody Cason (City of Grand Prairie) stated that sustainable procurement and energy efficiency were their priorities, specifically energy efficiency as it relates to policy development. Julissa Amador (City of Denton) was most interested in energy efficiency. Alex (City of Farmers Branch) had no preferences between sustainable procurement, energy efficiency, and regional green space. Dorothy Kindell (Tarrant Regional Water District) stated that sustainable procurement and green spaces would be of most interest.

Corinne (NCTCOG) asked what topics would be a high priority at the Regional Training Initiative. Lindsay Graf remarked Plano would be interested in LEED Green continuing education, and Cory Heiple agreed. Alex Pharmakis stated that professional certifications would be of the most interest, with Dorothy Kindell and Brandi Kelp seconding that sentiment. Susan Alvarez (NCTGOG) shared that LEED started a community rating system that would be worth sharing and confirmed that this program replaced the STAR Community Rating System. Sujata Gautam added that if the climate action plan training topic was considered, it should also consider local air monitoring development.
